A Guide to Philadelphia's Top Luxury Wellness & Recovery Spots

Philadelphia deepens its wellness presence with exciting new openings and new experiences from local favorites

PHILADELPHIA, June 18, 2026 – In 2026, spa getaways are evolving into intentional mini staycations, answering guests' longing for deeper connection and intentional rest.

Health-obsessed consumers are driving dizzying new travel patterns, with wellness tourism expected to surpass \$1.4 trillion by 2027. Although wellness trips made up just 7.8% of total travel in 2022, they generated nearly 19% of overall tourism spending — almost one in every five travel dollars.

In Philadelphia, luxury hotels and boutique spas continue to cater to this growing travel trend by offering everything from red-carpet facials and restorative head massages to detox body-sculpting studios with in-house baristas.

Look no further than Bathhouse. The social wellness brand is set to open its first location outside New York at the historic The Bellevue Hotel. This luxury experience will feature four pools and saunas, plus a host of contrast therapy amenities. Bathhouse joins the hotel's already elite sports club, which includes an NBA-sized basketball court, a four-lane lap pool and an indoor track.

Let's take a look at every indulgent splurge to zap your zen back into balance:
